

A method for treating or preventing atherosclerosis in a mammal is described. An agent for inhibiting interaction between P-selectin and a ligand of P-selectin is provided. The agent is administered to a mammal in need of such treatment to cause this inhibition to occur.

[illegible]